THE HUMAN FACTOR

"Beat the heat" — those three words used to remind me of my early days in the military. Beating the heat could be the difference between life and death at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. However, this historic motivational quote took on a whole new meaning following what I consider to be the scariest moments of my deployment.

LONG ROAD HOME

For service members, the first few weeks of reintegration after a long combat tour are crucial. We have to discard some of the tasks that kept us safe during a time of danger.

THINK BEYOND THE TARGET

As I walked along the farm, I spotted a treestand I'd never seen before. I made a note of it and continued my walk. Little did I know that the stand would reinforce an important safety lesson.

On the home front, a Soldier's "battle buddy" is often his or her family. Engaged families can make a huge difference in the safety of our Soldiers off-duty.

Find and review Army accident data with the Risk Management Information System.

The cooler days and longer nights of autumn are finally here, and with them come hazards unique to the season. As the temperature drops and Soldiers, Army civilians and Family members take to roads and the great outdoors for some well-deserved downtime, they'll be exposed to risk more often than they might think. It's important to prepare them now for what lies ahead. Are you Ready ... or Not?
